Wildlife is an essential part of our planet's biodiversity. It includes all living things that are not domesticated, such as mammals, birds, reptiles, amphibians, fish, and insects. However, wildlife populations are declining worldwide due to habitat loss, climate change, pollution, and human activities such as hunting and poaching. Protecting wildlife is crucial to maintain ecological balance and preserve the planet's natural resources.

There are several ways to protect wildlife. One of the most effective ways is to create protected areas such as national parks, wildlife reserves, and sanctuaries. These areas provide a safe habitat for wildlife and help to conserve their populations.

Another way is to regulate hunting and poaching activities by enforcing strict laws and penalties. This can help to reduce the illegal trade of wildlife products and protect endangered species. In addition, raising awareness about the importance of wildlife conservation is essential. Educating people about the negative impacts of human activities on wildlife and their habitats can help to change attitudes and behaviors towards wildlife. Supporting conservation organizations and volunteering in conservation efforts can also make a significant difference in protecting wildlife.

A1 Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

The stars are beautiful in the night sky. They are far away, farther away than most people can imagine. Even though they are light years away, they can still light up the sky. For thousands of years, people have been interested in stars. They have been used as fortunetellers, calendars and maps. Travellers often used the stars to help them find their way.

Before there was electricity, the stars and moon were the brightest things in the night sky. People spent hours staring up and wondering what the little, twinkling lights were. Back then, the stars were easier to see because there weren't any other lights at night. Not many ancient people realised that the sun was a star. The sun and moon were thought of as father and mother of earth in some ancient cultures. The stars were thought of as lesser gods or the souls of people who had died.

Greek philosophers, 2300 years ago, started to try and unravel the mystery. A man named Anaxagoras thought that the sun was a giant ball of metal burning in the centre of our universe. He was thrown in jail and sentenced to death because this idea conflicted with people's religious beliefs. Even though, people did not stop trying to understand the sun. The main goal of space exploration is to expand our knowledge of the universe and push the boundaries of human understanding. This marked a major milestone in human history and demonstrated our ability to reach and explore other astronomical objects. Since then, numerous missions have been conducted to explore planets, moons, asteroids, and comets within our solar system. Space telescopes, such as the Hubble Space Telescope, have enhanced our understanding of the universe. They provide detailed images and data that help astronomers study distant galaxies and stars. These observations have led to groundbreaking discoveries and deepened our understanding of the universe's origins and evolution. In addition to scientific exploration, space exploration also has practical applications. It has contributed to advancements in technology, communication systems, which have become integral parts of our daily lives. Satellites orbiting Earth enable global positioning systems (GPS), weather forecasting, and telecommunications services, among others. The future of space exploration holds even more possibilities. Adolescence is the time of life when a child is changing into an adult. The most obvious changes occur between the ages of 11 and 14 when young people mature both physically and mentally. Girls begin their growth suddenly between the ages of 10 and 12, about two years earlier than boys. Whereas girls reach their adult height by the age of 14, boys take until the age of 16 to get there. In a small village, there lived a little girl whose name was Sophia. Her uncle gave her a few coins to share with her twin brother, John, on their fifth birthday. She looked at the pieces and said, "What shall we do with them, mother?" "You mustn't spend them foolishly," said the mother. The twins ran into the street. They wondered what they should buy. Should they buy candy? They hardly knew how it tasted. Should they buy a toy? If they had been the only children in the family, things might have been different. But there were three brothers older than them and two little younger sisters. They hadn't gone far when they met a larger boy who was blowing a flute. "I wish I had that flute," John said. The big boy looked at them and blew it again. "Oh, what a beautiful sound it makes!", Sophia said. Then she showed the coins to the big boy and said, "You may have them if you give us the flute". "All of them?" the boy asked. Sophia looked at her brother and then she nodded. "Well, it's a deal," said the boy. He gave the flute to John and took the coins. Little John was very happy. They ran home quickly.

"You've paid much for this toy. You could have bought many flutes with the money," said their mother. The twins realized their mistake. The flute didn't please John anymore. He threw it away and began to cry. "Never mind", said the mother very kindly, "you are only very little, and you will learn a great deal as you grow bigger".
