Read the following passage and answer the questions:

As the world's population continues to grow and climate change makes it more difficult to produce food in the traditional way, scientists are developing new ways of growing plants efficiently. One of these ways is growing plants without soil. Although this may sound like a modern process, it is not new technology. Ancient Egyptian writings describe how plants were grown in water, and early examples include the famous gardens of Babylon and floating gardens built by the Aztecs in Mexico. In traditional farming, soil protects the roots of plants, but scientists have shown that plants do not need soil to grow. As long as they can get nutrients from somewhere, they will grow successfully. To grow plants without soil, special fertilizer is added to water and the plants take this in through their roots.

Recently, this technology has developed very quickly. It is common in northern Europe where it is used to grow food crops. Vegetables have been grown in submarines and astronauts have produced food in space using this technology. Many people think that growing plants in water could help to solve the world's food problems. As cities become larger, there is less land for agriculture. Countries with little land for growing crops could produce more of their food without soil. This way can also be used in areas with poor soil, such as deserts, and in areas near the sea where salt water is damaging the soil. Perhaps soon there will be no areas of the world where food cannot be produced.

2- Read the passage and then answer the questions:

Talia was meditating in her bedroom. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at the academy last week. Not that Talia had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced. She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Mark an anonymous “tip” that Talia had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Talia had long been a stellar student at the academy. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Saturday Talia had been called to Mr. Mark’s grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic. It was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Talia. Her family had little money. She attended the academy on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Talia planned to reveal her accuser.

4) What is meant by "diligence and perseverance"?

- A. efficiency and willpower

- D. painstaking attention

5) The Blauvelt Award is important to Talia because it will

Jane Goodall the great conservationist was born in London, England, on April 3, 1934. On her second birthday, her father gave her a toy chimpanzee named Jubilee. Jubilee seemed to foretell the course Jane's life would take. From an early age, Jane was fascinated by animals and animal stories. By the age of 10, she was talking about going to Africa to live among the animals there.

As a young woman, Jane finished school in London, attended secretarial school, and then worked for a documentary filmmaker for a while. When a school friend invited her to visit Kenya, she worked as a waitress until she had earned the fare to travel there by boat. She was 23 years old.

Once in Kenya, she met Dr. Louis Leakey, a famous anthropologist. He hired her to assist him and his wife on a fossil-hunting expedition. Dr. Leakey soon realized that Jane was the perfect person to complete a study he had been planning for some time. Dr. Leakey and Jane began planning a study of a group of chimpanzees who were living on the shores of Lake Tanganyika in Kenya.

One of the first significant observations that Jane made during the study was that chimpanzees make and use tools, much like humans do, to help them get food. It was previously thought that humans alone used tools. Also thanks to Jane's research, we now know that chimps eat meat as well as plants and fruits. In many ways, she has helped us to see how chimpanzees and humans are similar. In doing so, she has made us more sympathetic towards these creatures, while helping us to better understand ourselves.

2-Read the following passage, and then answer the questions:

Can you even begin to imagine what it would be like to live a life of silence in which you can't converse with others or make yourself understood? Well, today millions of people worldwide have whole conversations without actually uttering a word, due to the invention of sign language. For those people who are deaf, it is their primary means of communication with their fellow man. Unfortunately, it is mainly deaf 12 people who learn sign language, so their means of communication is limited as they can't converse with everyone.

Deaf people are capable of enjoying a laugh or a joke just like anyone. Usually, it is the hearing person that feels awkward or embarrassed around them. They usually raise their voice or even shout when trying to communicate – presuming this enables them to hear more – which of course is completely wrong. If hearing people just learned the basics of sign language, such as the alphabet and enough language to communicate, it would be beneficial to both groups.

What exactly is sign language? It is a non-verbal means of communication whereby people use gestures instead of sounds to represent words. They use their fingers to spell these words letter by letter as well as facial expressions and lip-reading. Like most of us, deaf people also use body language to convey messages to others. Sign language is not international as there are over two hundred different types of it in the world. In addition, as with most languages it has variations which differ from region to region.

1-What is the author's purpose in writing this passage?

- a) To explain physiological problems of deaf people.
b) To explain how sign language helps deaf people.
c) To explain benefits of keeping silent all the time.
d) To explain body language use in the oral presentation.

2-Which of the following is the correct summary for paragraph 2?

- a) It is advisable for normal persons to know the essentials of sign language.
b) It is recommended for normal people to keep telling jokes to deaf people.
c) It is common that deaf people have loud voice during conversation.
d) It is difficult for deaf people to enjoy funny things like normal people.

3-What can you infer about hearing people?

- a) They are hesitant on how to address the deaf.
- b) They are unable to use sign language.
- c) They only know the basics of sign language.
- d) They are afraid of the deaf people.

4-In your opinion, what do you think hearing people should do based on paragraph 2?

- a) Stop dealing with deaf people.
- b) Fully study sign language.
- c) Learn sign language basics.
- d) Keep raising their voice.

5-What does paragraph 3 tell you about sign language?

- a) It has its phonic system
- b) It has its written format.
- c) It is a universal language.
- d) It is primarily for deaf people.

6-Which of the following is NOT one of the reasons sign language was invented for?

- a) Encouraging people to use gestures and lip-reading.
- b) Facilitating communication among deaf people.
- c) Helping deaf people to fit into society.
